

Red Yam

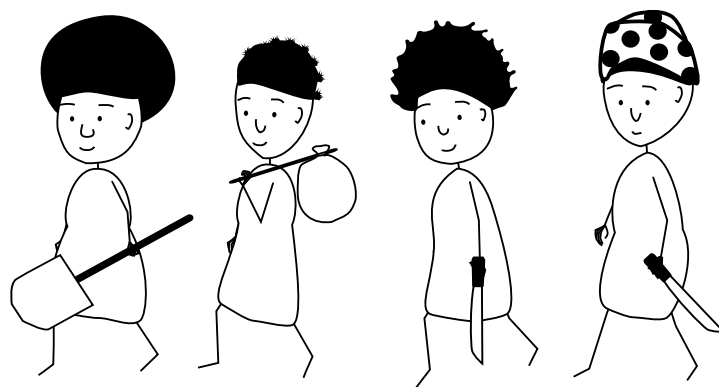

This is Mary, this is Lisa. The two are friends.

[1]

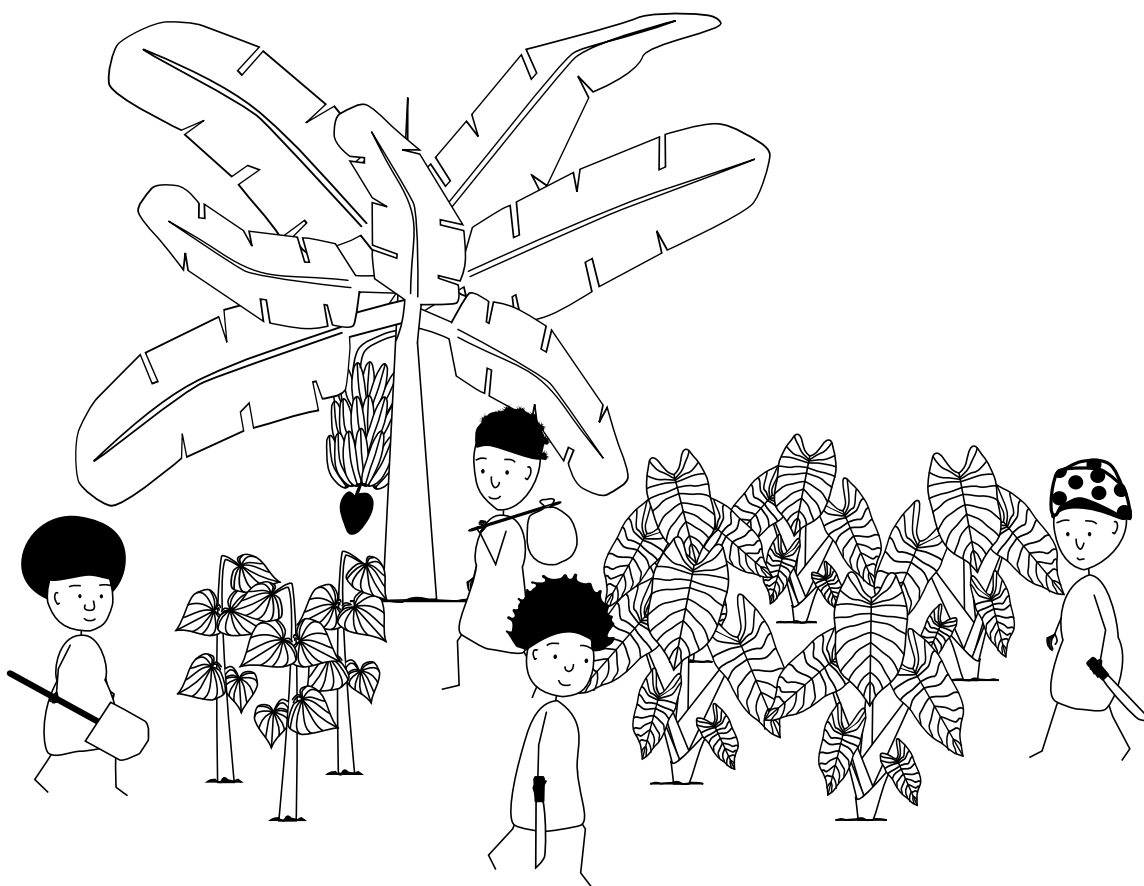

This is Rose and this is Christine. The two are friends with Mary and Lisa.

[2]

The women go to work in the garden.

[3]

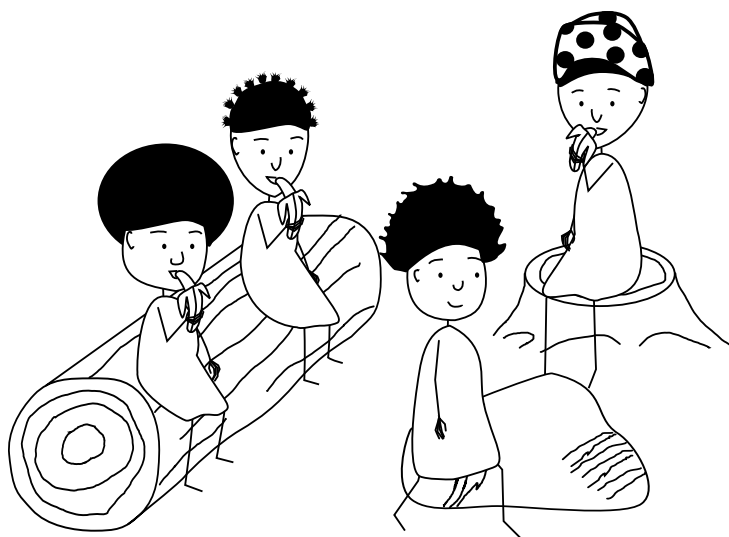

Everyone is busy working in the garden.

[4]

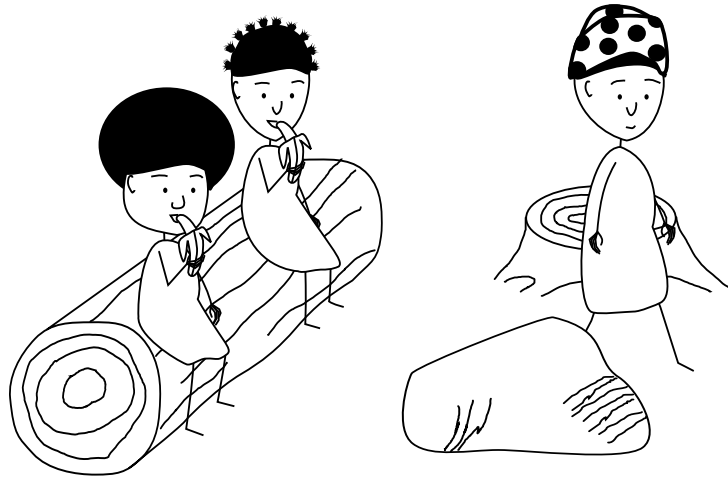

After a while, they sit down to rest.

[5]

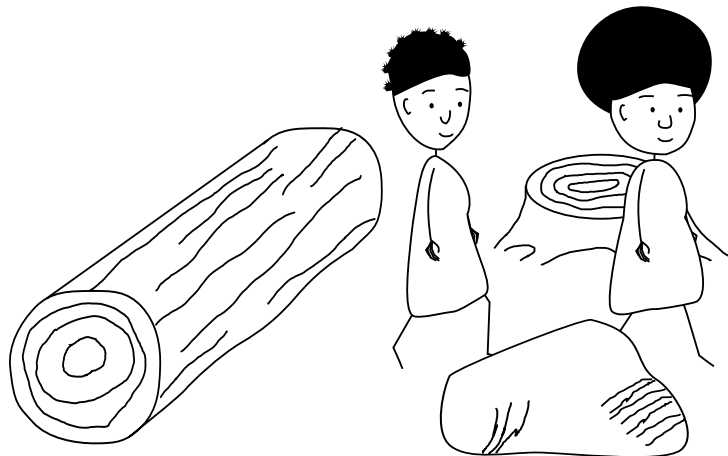

They rest a little and then Christine goes to the bush [to pee].

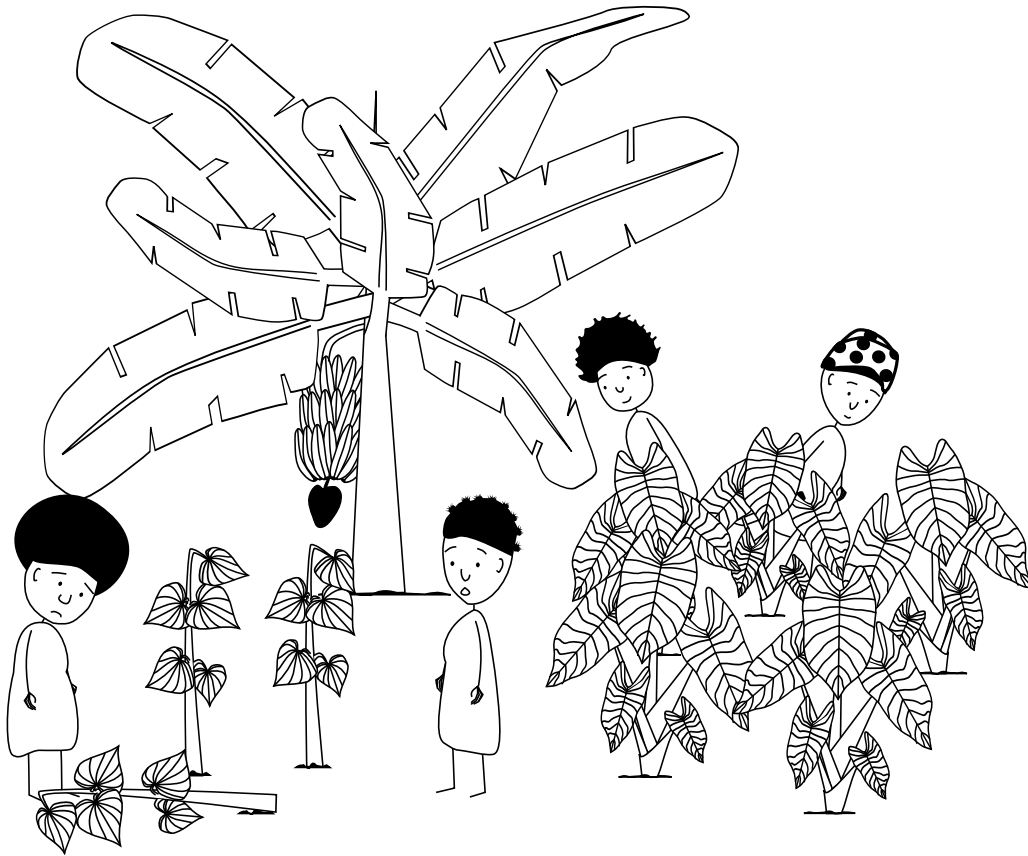

[6]

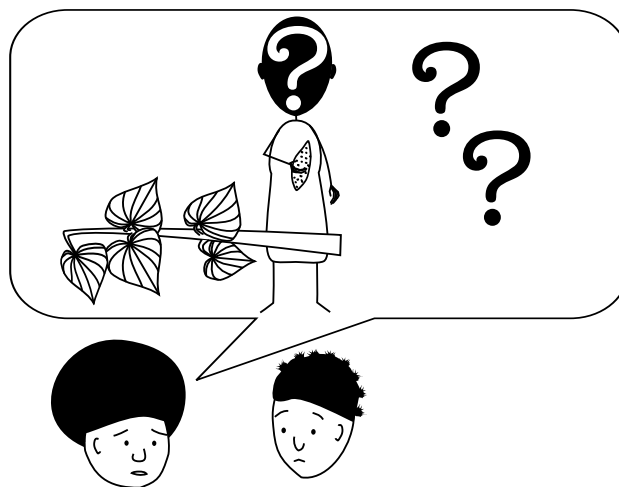

Then, Rose also goes into the bush.
[7]

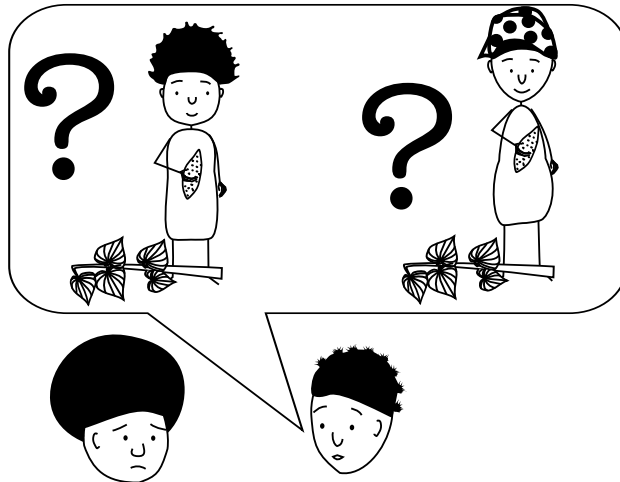

After a while, Mary and Lisa go back to the garden.
[8]

When they come back, they see that a red yam that Mary has planted is gone.
[9]

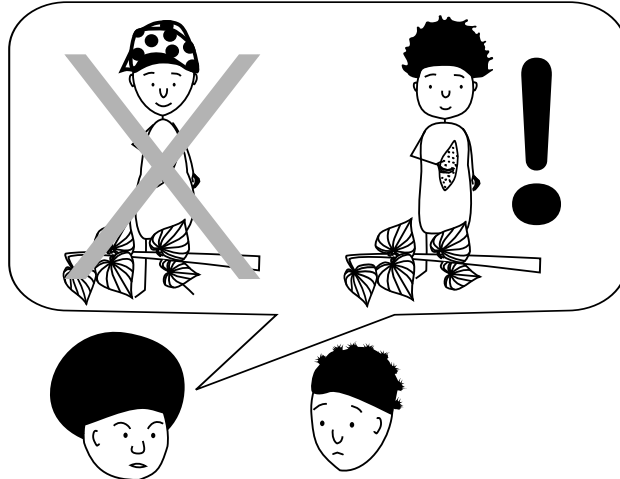

Mary asks Lisa: "Who has eaten my red yam?" [10]

Lisa says: "It might have been Christine, or it might have been Rose."

[11]

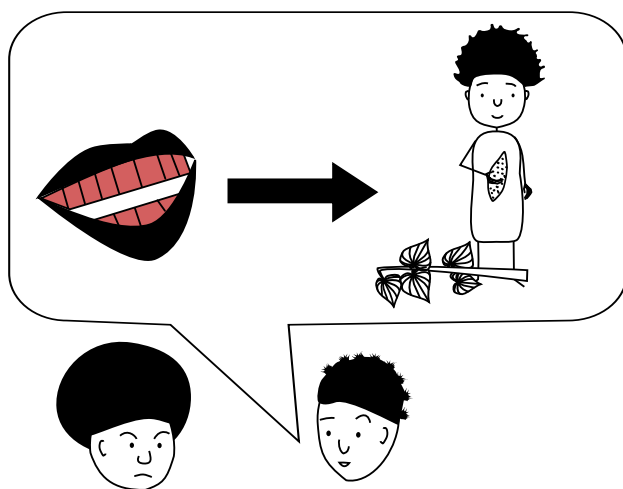

But Mary says: "No, it can't have been Rose. It must have been Christine who ate my red yam"

[12]

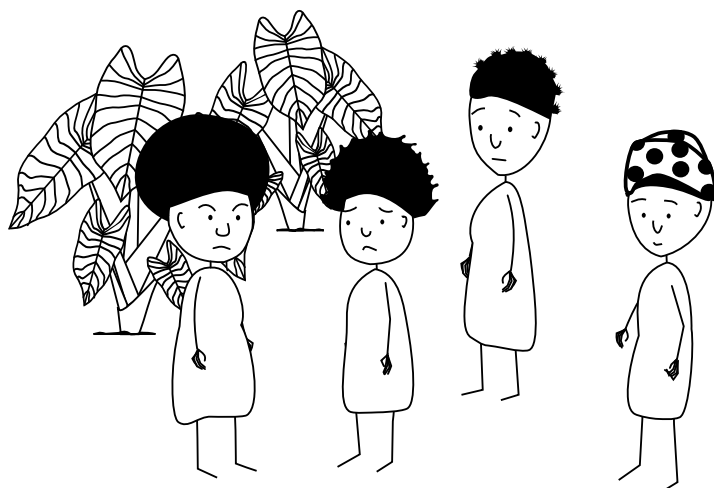

So Lisa says: "Look at Christine's teeth."

[13]

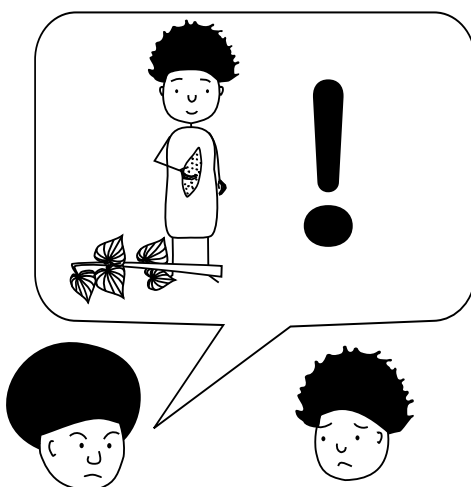

"If her teeth are red, then Christine has eaten your red yam."

[14]

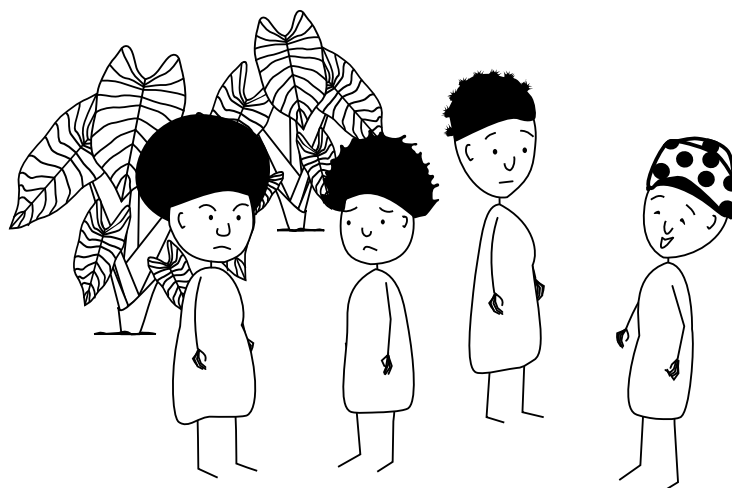

So Mary goes to Christine and is mad at her.

[15]

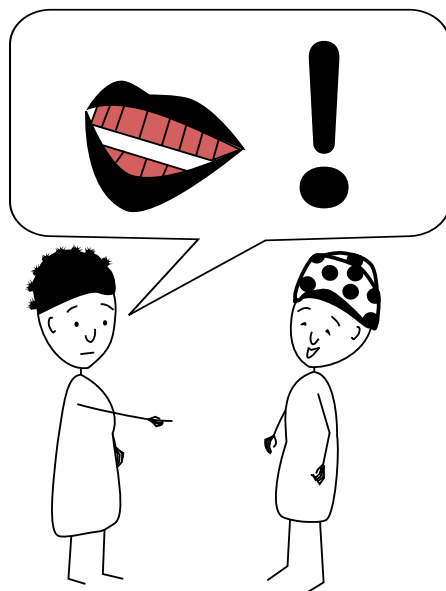

Mary says: "Christine, you ate my red yam!"

[16]

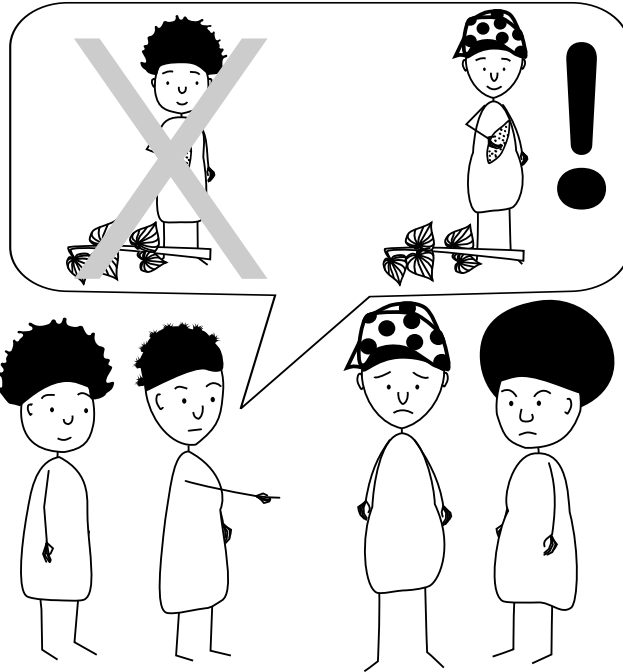

After Mary has said this, Rose starts to laugh.

[17]

Lisa points at Rose and says: "Look, Rose's teeth are red!"

[18]

Then she says: “Christine didn’t eat your red yam! It was Rose!”
[19]
